A DAY IN THE LIFE...

Master Esthetician Suzanne Boehm: RSF's 'Little Hidden Treasure'

By Fiona Orphan
Staff Writer

Someone once dubbed her "Rancho Santa Fe's little hidden treasure." Naturally, Suzanne Boehm is delighted with the epithet. She finds it fitting.

"I work in the background making perfect good," said the skin care specialist who practices a technique called "European stress release facial massage."

As different from what she calls a "California facial" as chalk from Greece, Boehm claims it "relates mind with the body being caring for the skin."

"It's a way of letting you the moment of peace all with we had," she says. "My hands do that for you."

For 13 years Boehm has been doing her bit to those moments of peace to her Rancho customers. She started out with just one who referred her to five more, and her client list grew longer and longer, to what she reads.
